Massimo Scolari, laureato in architettura a Milano nel 1969, nel 1973 diventa professore incaricato di storia dell'architettura a Palermo e disegno all'Istituto Universitario di Architettura di Venezia (IUAV). Nel 1983 vince il concorso per professore associato e nel 1986 la cattedra di ordinario.

Tra il 1975 e il 1993 è Visiting Professor in alcune delle più importanti università americane ed europee tra cui: Cooper Union N.Y., Institute for Architecture and Urban Studies N.Y., Technische Universität Vienna, Harvard University, e Cambridge Mass. Nel 2000 si dimette dall'università e consegue il brevetto di pilota. Dal 2006 al 2012 è Visiting Professor in Architectural Design alla Yale School of Architecture.

È stato redattore di "Controspazio", "Casabella" e "Lotus International", direttore di "Eidos" e della collana di architettura della Franco Angeli.

Ha esposto in Europa, Giappone, Russia e Stati Uniti. Le sue opere sono nelle collezioni permanenti del MoMa (New York), del Teheran Museum of Contemporary Art, del Deutsches Architektur Museum (Francoforte) e del Centre Pompidou (Parigi).

Ha realizzato installazioni alla Biennale di Venezia 1980, 1984, 1991, 1996, 2004 e alla Triennale di Milano 1973, 1986.

Nel 2007 Skira ha pubblicato una monografia per la personale al Museo Civico di Riva del Garda e nel 2012 l'edizione inglese per la mostra alla Yale University e alla Cooper Union di New York. Nel 2014 gli è stato conferito l'Arnold W. Brunner Memorial Prize in Architecture dalla American Society of Arts and Letters. Attualmente vive a Venezia.
